

Malebo Malope

Malebo is a registered genetic counsellor, and currently employed at Stellenbosch University as a lecturer responsible for coordinating teaching activities in the Clinical Genetics and Genetic Counselling Unit and partakes in clinical training. She completed her undergraduate studies at the University of Limpopo and obtained her master's degree in Genetic Counselling at the University of Cape Town where she is also pursuing a PhD in Genetic Counselling. She has a special interest in decision-making on termination of pregnancy for foetal abnormalities, accessible genetic counselling services and diversity and inclusion within the field of genetics and genomics. She is passionate about creating awareness on genetic counselling and genetic conditions, relevant research and psychosocial aspects to reduce stigma and misunderstanding on genetic conditions and does this through her social media page.